Average Size: 240 pound base. You will need 60-75 pounds of weight and most people find you are good for 40-50 minutes depending on your fitness level. Answers Best Answer:I had a Garmin Best Life in-home treadmill. I liked it, but broke it 6 months later. I was disappointed. New model I had on right after - I think it was $500. But it is not a "Treadmill" Like the first one. It is a cross-trainer, less than $500. I think there are about $150 treadmills at best, with the top ones $1000. I would recommend going to walmart, or going to a health store, and ask around. I would go to a retail store like Wal-Mart, and ask for a treadmill. They will give you a list of the treadmills that they sell, and you can ask which you think is the best. I've been reading many websites, but I don't know if they are all the same, or not. But I know that one of the ones I know about is the Life-Cycle by Life Fitness. I think it is $800. But you can find it online for about that. Best Answer:How long does the average walk on a treadmills last? It just seems like a lot of money, but that's the one and only way that I've seen a treadmill go. I would highly recommend a cross trainer, since it is cheaper and I've heard has a greater range of the different exercises and activities you can do. I hope this helps. I'd suggest getting a cross trainer. Work out on it 3-5 times a week for 1 hour. After a few months, start increasing the length and frequency of your workouts. After a year, you should be ready for the treadmill. After 2 years, you're done with cardio. Just weigh yourself after you complete a run and eat a bit. I'm about 70 and have been running for about 2 years. At my height, I
