The name derives from the Château de Beychevelle, owned by the Ségur family. The estate has been owned by the Perrin and Guigal families since 1985. The wine is 100% Merlot, a grape variety from which Bordeaux wine is known to originate. Production The vineyards of Château Beychevelle are located in Ségalais commune, Saint-Émilion, in the south of the Médoc appellation. They are situated in both right bank and left bank vineyards in the best sites on the Medoc's slopes, with elevations between 130 and 175 meters. Château Beychevelle produces slightly lighter wines of higher quality, than its southern neighbor Château Angelus. Let's say I create a calendar event. I want to be able to attach additional files (audio, video etc.). I create the event; add some items (e.g. 1 png file to be displayed), and then save it. When I open this event (Ctrl+O) the event is not displayed with the other items. When I search for the event in the Google calendar application, the item that I have attached is still there. What's the best way to do this? Here's an example: Is it possible to display the event as shown above, in the Google calendar application? A

For patients with ischaemic stroke, non-invasive assessment of carotid atherosclerosis can be done using ultrasound and MRI. The results are an ordered list of artery-specific sub-carotid lesions and a coefficient of variation (CoV) of the lesion burden. Previous studies have shown a correlation between the severity of the CoV and the risk of ischaemic stroke. However, the risk due to CoV when compared to the individual lesion burden has not been studied. In addition, the impact of heterogeneity in the lesions, which may arise due to different starting points of the plaque on the risk of ischaemic stroke has not been explored. In the present study, the heterogeneity is modelled by incorporating multiple starting points of the plaque along the arterial surface in a patient-specific geometrical model of the carotid arteries. We show that the lesion CoV associated with risk of ipsilateral ischaemic stroke is 50% higher than that predicted by the lesion burden alone. Heterogeneity of the plaque starting points reduces the CoV by 15-25% for the same risk of ischaemic stroke. The results highlight the need for considering heterogeneity in the lesions when assessing the risk of ischaemic stroke. The possibility of a therapeutic benefit of a uniform starting point of plaque should be investigated. UNPUBLISHED UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS 3e33713323
