Q: Apple Developer Program - iOS Provisioning File We are creating a pre-release build of an application and need to sign it with a signing certificate. However, we are getting a message from Apple: The provisioning file 'filename.mobileprovision' must be located in 'filename.mobileprovision' We do not have a file called 'filename.mobileprovision', only 'filename.mobileprovision.p12'. I have verified that the file is not in a password protected location, nor do we have an expired certificate. I have taken a look at this question: but it seems a bit more complicated than we need. A: I'm not an Apple developer so I don't know if that's just an assumption of how Apple expects you to set up the certificate etc. However, if you are doing the one-man-armageddon-homebrew-project-runthrough using a Terminal.app ssh session, you could use the -i or --certificate option to start the ssh session with your certificate in the.ssh/authorized_keys file. Maybe something like ssh -i /path/to/my.p12 -C user@servername.com or ssh -i /path/to/my.p12 -C user@servername.com -o IdentityFile=/path/to/my.p12 (the -o flag is shorthand for -o IdentityFile=/path/to/my.p12) The ssh session will then start up using the certificate in your.ssh/authorized_keys and you will have a bash shell to pick apart. If you can get something up and running this way, you may find that the file system is simply assuming that it is a provisioning file in your.mobileprovision file.
