What's New In USBSkin?

USBSkin is a simple tool that allows you to change the appearance of your USB drive by displaying a selected background on it. The software requires no special installation and can be used right away. The program is completely free to use and it can be downloaded for free from the author's official website. When it's all said and done, you can change the background of your USB drive in a personalized manner. Of course, the background image doesn't change the size of your USB drive and that's why the process takes a few minutes to complete.

USBSkin Screenshots: This invention relates to a receptacle for a baby bottle and to a baby bottle having a receptacle therein. Many babies, especially babies of a premature age, are fed by hand held bottles of the type having a nipple and a container surrounding the nipple and adapted to be squeezed by the suckling baby to suck liquid therefrom. These bottles are commonly known as "transition bottles" since they transition the infant from the mother's milk to a semi-synthetic milk suitable for introduction in a more mature age. Because babies of a premature age are unable to hold their head upright, the bottle must be supported and hence it is customarily supported against the wearer's body. Since the bottle is held by hand, the holding force is small and the bottle can easily be displaced from its upright position and tipped over. The mother usually cleans the nipple and container of the bottle after each feeding so as to prevent accidental infection from the mother's milk. The nipple and container must be cleaned when the mother is not feeding the infant, since if the nipple is allowed to remain in a baby's mouth for an extended period of time the nipple will become smeared with milk and sticky from the saliva and therefore become clogged and must be cleaned. Conventionally such bottles are cleaned by means of a brush, sponge, or swab. These cleaning materials are inadequate for the purpose since they are bulky and relatively heavy and since the infant may be lying on a bed or the like and may not be easily moved or be in an upright position. It is, therefore, an object of this invention to provide a baby bottle having a receptacle therein which is adapted to rest on the wearer's body so as to permit proper supporting of the bottle against the wearer's body and to prevent the bottle from being displaced or knocked off its support. It is another object of the invention to provide a receptacle for a baby bottle which
