I'll have to think about what I want to do. But I'm enjoying my freedom right now. I'm saving my money so I can buy a bigger place, so once that's done, I can focus on my art. Have you been out of show business and designing clothes for a long time? I haven't been out of show business. I've just been designing independently. There seems to be a lot of people in your age range with considerable drawing experience. Is that a bit discouraging? I'm not discouraged. I'm just curious. I want to find out, "Do I have what it takes to be a successful designer?" I want to find out so I can know if I need to change my path. I see a lot of people say that they want to do it but don't know how to approach it, because it's so daunting. Yes, I hear that a lot. But I think those people eventually overcome that. You have to have some passion in your heart for it. It's not like you start with $10,000 in the bank. You have to want to work, so I think that helps. When I started this project I knew I had a limited amount of money. I've been able to save and see the fruits of my work because I know it's going to be paid for when it's ready. I feel like I can wait until it's done and not have to worry about finding an investor. So no venture capital? No. My style is more about timeless, elegant clothing that's destined to be in people's closets for years and years. I hope people can still wear them 20 years from now. To support that, I have to charge a premium and I'll have to price it accordingly. I won't have to find investors or have people give me loans. When do you plan to start producing your line of clothes? I'd like to
