The suit argues that Trump's actions have diminished the powers of Congress, the courts and the press in response to the president's assertion of broad constitutional powers. The suit notes that when Trump took office, he enacted a travel ban and made changes to the Affordable Care Act and a line of tobacco products. Judge Robert S. Lasnik of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Washington, the longtime Democratic Party activist who was appointed by George H.W. Bush, dismissed the suit by declaring the plaintiffs could not show that they suffered "injury" and were "injured" by Trump's actions. "Plaintiffs fail to point to anything in the Constitution that authorizes a judicial remedy for any and all injuries they suffer because of what they
