What's new:

Ultimate Bomb Squad was a fictional police SWAT team appearing on the 20th and 21st seasons of The A-Team in NBC's second season. The team has a high sense of humor and love a good prank. They generally partner with a civilian to solve a crime. While working for general Ned Cobb, who had demoted them to the lowest callout priority, they have met with some success and earned their promotion back to main priority status.

The characters and the stories in this article are fictitious. Any similarities to any real persons, living or dead, is either coincidental or is intended as a tribute. The character names and profiles below do not necessarily represent which individual is most accurate for any particular A-Team episode, nor do they correlate with the specific roles above.

Colonel T. J. King (voiced by Nate Corddry) - Commander of the N.C.P.D.'s SWAT team. King seems to have been assigned to the A-Team in the final episode of the season. In the episodes he has appeared in, he is in no way connected to the team's creators or main characters in any way. He has had a reputation as an extremely good cop who has a close working relationship with Cobb. In his introduction, King states that he has a Masters in psychology and philosophy.

Kenny (voiced by Randall D. Thompson) - A SWAT Team member who holds the view that one should "Enjoy trouble. Trouble doesn't enjoy you. You enjoy trouble." Kenny is a 23-year-old military vet who is the father of an autistic daughter.

Rembrandt (voiced by Marlon Wayans) - A former criminal who was scheduled for execution at the end of the first season, but was able to become a member of the SWAT team. He is best friends with Murdock and likes to mock his best friend and teammates, the most infamous of which was "summoning" them in ghost form for rescue assistance during a drug case.

Woodman (voiced by Scott Grimes) - The "tech wizard" of the group, as he has the most advanced technical and scientific knowledge. Woodman sometimes meddles in the team's missions, but only when he believes it is needed. He is also apparently quite smart and an amazing sniper, as he saw through Lieutenant O'Hare's helmet when he first joined the A-Team.

Murdock (voiced by Keith David) - The former leader of
