The year is 300 years after dragons disappeared from the world. Warriors born with the fortune of having dragon blood in their veins are known as dragon hunters. Most of them are born with wings on their backs and devour the blood of cursed humans in order to fulfill their role as protectors of the dragons. The empire of which they are part is known as the Iron Alliance, and the last thing the world needs is another warlike and expansionist power. In order to keep the peace, the Iron Alliance does not officially condone the existence of the dragon hunters, nor the "witchers", as they are known. But in reality, no dragon hunter can live in the empire without the witchers and the dragons they feed on. Determination of prognosis in progressive myoclonus epilepsy (PME) may be obtained through analysis of sleep-dependent myoclonus during electroencephalography (EEG), but is difficult to perform. To overcome this difficulty, we developed a new test we call the Dammam Stroop test, in which patients are asked to repeat syllables in Arabic while performing a task with an embedded color-naming task. The test relies on the suppression of temporal myoclonus by a color-naming task. This suppressive effect is absent in patients with myoclonus that is only sleep-dependent and in sleep-unrelated myoclonus. We applied the Dammam Stroop test to 22 patients with PME and 16 age- and sex-matched controls. The test

Features Key:

4 different wormholes. You can easily switch between them
Big or small areas of space
Set your wormhole on a planetary body or in the Sun's system

Getting started:

1. You start by creating a world, and then select your wormhole
2. Once your wormhole is setup, you place the planet you want it on. It won't be there, though, until you start playing!
3. Now you're ready to play!

Arrow keys use the wormhole selection scroll wheel.

Wormholes have the following attributes:

- This wormhole is outside the solar system
- Diameter: 3km
- Mass: 1g
- Maximum number of asteroids per sector: 11
- Maximum number of Exoplanets per sector: 19

The wormholes have this property in common: They only contain systems with EXOPLANETS or else, the planet is a VERY distant world.

Many worlds and billions of EXOPLANETS in one game!

- The universe's a big, big place!
- In a new game you have up to 8000 WORMHOLE SYSTEMS.
- These systems may contain ONE WORLD, or may have up to 7000 EXOPLANETS

The physics of the selected planet determines what bodies may appear, which are then included in the wormhole region of space. There are NO budgets or rules to buy materials/power for combat.

, hmm just too lazy lol. Glad you got it figured out and that you understand more about it. Mack99, if it looks like cake, it's usually pretty good at being cake! And I sure like the back story! To ilja@happierhappier- That's a good point about the back story. It's good to see your creativity moving in the same direction as mine at some points. Once I start digging, I can't stop myself. :-) I've been there, done that. Luck be a good friend, staking a claim at once! Illja, thanks again for the encouraging words! Those Captstardos pies are sooo good! Ha, about the girl with nothing going on, that is the way most small towns are. Small but neat. Ok, can't help myself, gotta check in! lol, hehe. May I ask, why is the name of your snsnes girl "Illja"? Illja is a girl's name which means "peace" or "at ease". In Polish, it also means "I see you" (translation of the name Illja is "See you"). It is a short form of the name Ilja. The drag and noise characteristics of a delta wing, with and without attitude control, are numerically investigated through direct numerical simulations of the two-dimensional Navier-Stokes equations. To find the governing relationships between the predominant fluid physics effect and the drag and noise characteristics, several flow quantities including their transverse and streamwise velocity spectra are scrutinized with respect to the nominal steady state of the flow domain. The rich structure of the spectra in the spanwise direction suggests that the friction drag exerted on the wing affects the flow pattern throughout the streamwise extent of the domain which can be tuned through the wing sweep angle, and the turbulent skin friction is chiefly correlated with the spanwise Kolmogorov length in the spanwise direction.

The coherent turbulence activity perpendicular to the flow plane is also shown to influence the behavior of the noise spectrum, which is markedly affected by the change in
