The study was aimed at evaluating efficacy of the treatment of patients with chronic hepatitis C, its safety and its fitness for being a long-term therapy. A total of 42 patients with chronic hepatitis C were investigated. The patients received entecavir (ETV) 0.5 mg/d orally as antiviral therapy. The treatment duration was 48 weeks. The duration of observation was 24 months after the initiation of treatment. The total number of adverse effects, the drug tolerance and safety were examined. The results of biochemical and virological tests were evaluated. In 24 (57%) patients with the treatment efficacy the virus was not detectable in at least one time point after the end of therapy and in 12 patients (29%) the duration of virus negativity was less than 6 months. The virological efficacy in 12 patients on treatment with ETV was only in 1 case, in 1 case was partial, in 6 cases complete (one of them showed virological relapse in the second follow-up). No significant adverse effects were found during the treatment, nor during the follow-up. The therapy was well tolerated. The combination therapy with entecavir was safe, well tolerated and suitable to be continued for long time.[Evaluation of the action of the Ukraine visa regime on foreign trade and economic relations with Ukraine]. I'm not very familiar with javascript, but from what I've seen, I need to subtract one date from the other. Here is the code I have so far: var inc = document.getElementById('incMileage'); var curr = document.getElementById('currMileage'); var cal1 = document.getElementById('calendar1'); var cal2 = document.getElementById('calendar2'); var date1 = curr.value; var date2 = cal1.value; var date3 = cal2.value; var d1 = new Date(date1); var d2 = new Date(date2); var d3 = new Date(date3); var seconds1 = d1.getSeconds(); var seconds2 = d2.getSeconds(); var seconds3 = d3.getSeconds(); inc.innerHTML = seconds1 - seconds3; I need to subtract the date in the element cal2 from the date in the element cal1, which should be of type Date. I want to store the time portion in seconds and then subtract that number from the minutes and seconds of the current time. For example, today is March 20, 2015 at 10:40AM EST. The date in the element cal2 is yesterday, March 19, 2015 at 8:00PM EST. How do I subtract the time portion of d3 from d1? My result should look something like 2:37. I can manipulate the result using the display: e79caf774b
