Donate Over the past week there has been an upsurge in sexual assaults and harassment cases in the mainstream media. On December 17th, several mainstream news outlets and the BBC published an article about "alleged" sexual assaults on women and men in London's Notting Hill, a popular multicultural area. This was the first time the mainstream media admitted that some sexual assaults and harassment had taken place there. Just three days before the article, on December 14th, Breitbart London reported that two men "escaped with their lives" after being arrested for sexual offences against the same two women in the same area of the city. The mainstream media chose to ignore that story. The mainstream media also ignored an FBI report from 2010 that stated that in the U.S. sexual assaults have increased by around 20 percent over the past six years. On December 17th, the BBC published an interview with the former HR director of Canadian broadcasting company Rogers, who revealed that female executives were routinely harassed by their male colleagues, especially in the finance industry and during relocations. The male bosses also used their power to punish women who complained about the harassment. Two days earlier, on December 15th, The Guardian published an article in which the newspaper reported that the sexual harassment of female executives has "increased dramatically" in companies worldwide. On December 8th, Vanity Fair published an article reporting that the sexual harassment of women in the 1cdb36666d

You'll learn that your feelings of abandonment are real and understandable. However, you may feel confused and angry about how your body failed to keep your baby alive. Our bereavement counseling programs can help you work through your loss. Because you have lost so much so suddenly, you may not know what to expect. Because your loss is new and sudden, you may need time to make sense of it. Sessions are 45 minutes and are generally scheduled at convenient times for you to accommodate your daily schedule. We can begin a session at any time within the first three months after your baby's death and continue through the first year. Amber & Her Baby "After my son was born, my doctor told me we would get better. In actuality, things worsened. After he was placed in my arms, I was never the same. I was someone who was always ready and on time, and now I felt I lived in a world of endless appointments, and I was always sick. I was no longer cute, nor did I feel strong or powerful. Over the past year, I've had to relive and relive what happened. I cried and cried and even attempted to make things better with my family and friends. I've had to learn to forgive myself for the things I shouldn't have done, and I've had to forgive my loved ones for things that I should have forgiven them for. My healing process does not have an end date, but I am hopeful that I will eventually find a way to cope with everything that has happened." "Before I met my son, I had a healthy and happy relationship with my family and friends, but after he was born, I felt like I was
