A: The following code should set up a global variable called solution which contains the string solution = " " +".join(solution text) + " " which will be used to insert the line of code into the file after each solution is found (this could be done using a function for the simplicity of this example). The code would then look like: solution text = r.text.strip() solution = " " +".join(solution text) + " " f = open("answers.txt", "a") f.write(solution) f.close() Extensive interstitial fibrosis predicts a poor outcome in idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis. Acute exacerbations and pulmonary function decline occur more frequently in idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis (IPF) patients with a worse prognosis. We examined whether these clinical and functional variables may predict an earlier onset of disease or the evolution of pulmonary function decline in a cohort of patients with IPF. We performed a prospective follow-up study in a cohort of 61 patients with IPF using a validated IPF screening tool and a questionnaire. The presence of interstitial changes with an extensive fibrosis pattern on chest highresolution computed tomography (HRCT) was related to the worst HRCT score and the rate of change in pulmonary function ( $\Delta$ %FVC) over time. We also looked for the differences in survival between the most recent HRCT scans. The mortality rate was 28% after a mean time of 33.8  $\pm$  20.9 months. During the follow-up, 62% of the patients showed a progressive disease. The presence of extensive fibrosis was associated with a statistically significant worse FVC slope (p = 0.04) and a shorter time to reach an FVC 0.05). The diagnosis of IPF should be considered when a patient with more aggressive clinical evolution presents with extensive interstitial fibrosis.3D Printing Jobs in Whittlesey, Cambridgeshire This is a prestigious and successful farming based business with a history stretching back more than a century.
