hit television show "The Golden Girls" has been gone for a quarter century, but fans of the show still want to know what happened to the late, great Bea Arthur. Arthur died of breast cancer in August 1989, but the cause of her death was a mystery until a mysterious envelope with a note came to the show's producers. Arthur's own family was devastated by her death, but when no one claimed the note, the producers began to wonder if it was from her. Her family has kept the note and the memories of her death inside the envelope, but recently, it was opened up in the hopes of finding out more about her. The note was written in Arthur's own handwriting, and it was addressed to her family, urging them to not " f988f36e3a
