Press 'S' for search and 'T' for telnet. You will be prompted to enter a keyword, followed by enter for search or T for telnet. Once you have entered a keyword and pressed return, you will be prompted to enter a host. On Windows you will be prompted to enter the IP address, where on *NIX you will be prompted to enter a full or partial hostname. If a keyword does not match any files in the current directory, or a remote host is not supported, you will be prompted for more information. Search is unlimited. Supported commands: Search = > S T HOST Your Host IP Address (Windows): > IP Your Host Name (Unix): > HOSTNAME Your Host IP Address (Unix): > HOSTNAME CONFIG File: > F HOST IP < If in a config file, you must press '.' to move down, and ',' to move up. If you press enter on a blank line, the next command will be taken as the end of the config file. If you want to quit the config file, hit enter, then 'E'. If you enter 'E', you will be prompted for a filename to read from. BASEDIR: You can put one line, or an endless series of lines of information to be displayed in the BASEDIR section of the config file. ## What's New in the TeleMagic 2000?

TeleMagic 2000 is a small, fast and simple telnet client. It has some funny features which can be seen as options. It's not even a full fledged telnet client, and only lets you do one thing - just talk. Yes, you can do more, but that's not TeleMagic's strength. TeleMagic 2000 is a good telnet client, so it has the following features: * Simple and easy to use. * Doesn't need a graphic interface, only text. * Can save its state. * Has a great set of telnet options. * Prints a history of the users last few lines. * Allows you to print a lot of variables, or just a few. * It's free, and it's good! Download: TeleMagic 2000 is currently in the process of going through a few development cycles. The current version is 2.0, which is better than 1.0. The latest stable version is 2.1.1.1. Please send your bug reports to info@telemagic.com. This application will be updated, so you have to be patient. The '--P0' options to 'telnet' tell the application to launch as a background process, so you won't have to exit the application to close it. The default is to not be a background process, but to launch as one. TODO Version 0.9: Changed from background process to background socket. Added '--xsize' command, which let's you print the history of all users, to be used with '--tty' options. Version 1.0: Initial release. The main focus is on converting the application to be as small as possible, with no real GUI. The use of a background socket to communicate with the server, instead of using a GUI, allows for a much smaller size. The application has been around for a while, so its size is already small. This version is only a very first iteration of what's to come. Version 2.0: Adding a window, which allows you to keep the background socket open. Use '--desktop' to place it on a particular desktop. Now that there is a window, you can use the '--side' option to allow you to control all of the options with the mouse. Added '--xsize' command to print a history of all users, which you can use with '--tty' options. Version 2.1: Fixed a bug in my previous version. That's the first bug report, and I accept it as the first submission of this project. Added a new option for printers called '--printonly'. Now, you can just print anything, or you can print only specific things. You can also print only the last 5 lines of a user. Added more options, and cleaned up some code.
